Istanbul Stadt als Museum

Exkursion

09.-11. Mai 2013

Istanbul war im Verlauf seiner Geschichte Machtzentrum dreier Großreiche und ist heute Weltstadt auf zwei Kontinenten mit rund 13 Millionen Einwohnerinnen/Einwohnern und gut 50 Museen. Aufgrund seiner historischen Bedeutung und Lage ist Istanbul durch zwei Kulturkreise geprägt, die sich in der Struktur, in der Erscheinung und im Alltag der Stadt überlagern und vermischen. Ausgehend von Orhan Pamuks Texten zur Geschichte und Gesellschaft seiner Heimatstadt fragen wir, wo und wie die Vergangenheit Istanbul zwischen und mit ihren diversen kulturellen Prägungen im Stadtraum manifest wird. Wo treffen sich Orient und Okzident in Denkmälern und religiösen Bauten? Welche Stadtgeschichten vermitteln die Museen? Lassen sich Neudeutungen historischer Ereignisse oder Umdeutungen von Objekten an politischen Entwicklungen festmachen? Welche Relevanz hat die Geschichte als identitätsbildendes Moment für die Istanbuler Bevölkerung heute? Und schließlich: Wie nutzen zeitgenössische Künstler/innen und Kulturschaffende die Vergangenheit als Quelle ihrer Arbeit und als Potenzial einer kulturellen Stadtentwicklung?

Byzantium on the Golden Horn
Between the hills of old Istanbul and Pera lies a horn-shaped inlet extending westward from the Bosphorus. The "Golden Horn" as its shape implies forms one of the finest harbors in the world. It is here that Constantinople was enthroned as the "new Rome" on the many hills of what we now call Istanbul, and where the great Byzantine empire ruled the eastern Mediterranean for a thousand years. During a three-hour tour we will explore the inner hills of the city over this area, peeling back the religious, cultural and architectural layers as we make our way towards the northern city walls.

Glamour & Grunge: Art in Istanbul

Over the course of the 20th century, Turkish art experienced a rise in the opening of art schools and young artists who adapted European influence over Ottoman styles. Art continued to evolve, forming a unique harmony between east and west where traditional meets the contemporary. During this three hour walk, in the company of an art historian, we will discuss the recent developments and expansion of the contemporary art scene in Turkey, as well as its cultural and sociological role in the daily life of Istanbulites.

Made in Istanbul Walk

As a crossroads between east and west, and a major center for global trade—including the trade in ideas—Istanbul's creative industries are on the move: furniture, fashion, architecture, and industrial design are all flourishing in the Turkish metropolis attracting aficionados and collectors from Europe and the Middle East. During this three-hour walk we will explore the cool, cutting-edge districts of Istanbul where the city's deep past and Ottoman traditions influence modern thinking. In the company of a local designer, we'll explore fashion, architecture, design, and a variety of other applied arts that are emerging in Istanbul today.
